

SMART METER MELTDOWN
Copyright 2011 by Ellen Cecil
(A Parody Sung to WHITE CHRISTMAS by Irving Berlin)

I'm dreaming of a Smart Meter-free planet
Just like the one I used to know
Where the radiation's no stress
With zero microwave mess...so
The pulses won't make my circuits blow.

I'm praying for a Smart Meter Meltdown
Because Big Brother wants control
Over birds, bees and trees plus
Our money, lives 'n' disease, but...
By God, he'll never have our souls!

I'm standing up to unjust laws and evil
Since freedom is my sovereign right.
I say "NO" to Smart Meters
And the power company cheaters.
Now my future is looking awfully bright!

I'm fighting for the children of tomorrow
Never to die by digital death.
Let them breathe the pure air
And know that I care
With every heartbeat, every breath.

May our meters be an analog delight
And may all our daydreams reach new heights!

May our meters be an analog delight
And may all our daydreams reach new heights!
